Linda Petzold receives 1999 Dahlquist Prize

Yesterday, the Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics presented the Germund Dahlquist Prize to Linda R. Petzold for her important contribution to effective numerical methodology for differential equations, especially the analysis of methods for differential-algebraic equations, the construction of effective techniques for their solution, and the integration of these and other techniques into robust software, thus making possible the reliable solution of large classes of ordinary and partial differential equations arising from engineering and science applications.

Plenary Lecture of A M Linan has been cancelled
